GUEST SPEAKER

Welcome Lorraine Shamall-Hannah!

Lorraine was raised in Kenya in a diverse cultured home with a Kenyan father and a Pakistani mother that traveled frequently nationally and internationally. That experience allowed her to gain extensive exposure to different cultures making her aware of the inequalities that exist; such as the lack of social justice, poor health facilities, and an all too common disregard for human rights.

She is currently in Southern Sudan where she completed consultancy work with PSI on a Global Fund Malaria Program as a Health Communications Coordinator on the Long Lasting Insecticide treated Net (LLIN) program; designed to help reduce the prevalence of malaria among the target population; pregnant women and children less than five years of age in Southern Sudan.

At present, she is working with UNICEF and the Government of Southern Sudan (GoSS), Ministry of Health on the development of educational materials (IEC) to be used by health care providers throughout the region to educate pregnant women on good breastfeeding practices, complementary feeding, nutrition, and hygiene. Lorraine resides in Atlanta, GA with her husband Shawn who works for Google and travels this world more than she.
